Risk notice:

We mainly work with ‘suitable counterparties’ and ‘professional clients’ (hereinafter referred to collectively as ‘institutional clients’) for the purposes of the WpHG (Wertpapierhandelsgesetz, securities trading act). For this reason we would like to inform you that, on the basis of having such a clientele, we presume that our clients can understand and assess the risks of the chosen forms of investment.

We do not perform any appropriateness tests for these clients to determine whether the investment form selected by each of our clients suits their profile based on previously gained knowledge and experience in securities trading. We also do not carry out suitability tests.

Information is also not sought for private clients when it is a money market instrument, bond or another securitised debt instrument being brokered, provided there is no derivative embedded in it. Consequently, Baader & Heins AG also does not carry out an appropriateness test in these situations.

We would particularly like to inform you that Baader & Heins AG operates an execution-only service. Advice and risk disclosure is offered for neither institutional clients nor private clients.

Methods of communication

You may convey your order to us electronically, by telephone, orally or in writing by fax, email or letter. Our clients may communicate with us in either German or English.

Tied agents

Baader & Heins Capital Management AG does not currently work with tied agents.

Recording of telephone conversations and electronic communication

We would strongly like to inform you that we record all communication, relevant to WpHG-transactions, for documentation purposes, to continually improve the quality of our service and due to statutory obligations. We store these recordings for five years or, in certain cases where supervisory authorities have demanded it, for up to seven years. Subject to legal regulations you can request that we stop recording at the beginning of the call.

Information about costs and charges

We charge our clients a brokerage fee for the brokering of transactions, the amount of which is dependent on the nature and scope of the securities service performed. If desired, we can provide our clients with detailed information about individual costs and charges.

Information about securities transactions and how they are executed

Unless otherwise agreed, Baader & Heins AG sends its clients an invoice containing the essential data of the executed transactions involving financial instruments after each transaction, though by no later than the first business day following the execution of an order.

Best execution

The requirements of the WpHG for the creation of extensive execution guidelines do not apply if the securities trading company and the client together agree on a contract of sale of financial instruments at a fixed or determinable price (fixed-price contract). Baader & Heins Capital Management AG does not offer to execute orders by way of commission business in trading venues as defined by MiFID II. All brokered transactions are executed solely on the basis of fixed-price contracts. The Company also does not offer to execute limit orders.

In such cases, the obligations of the securities trading company and the client are based exclusively on their contractual arrangement. Fixed-price contracts for securities transactions, for example, involve an obligation to deliver the securities and another obligation to pay the purchase price. With fixed-price contracts, Baader & Heins Capital Management AG will fulfil its general obligation for best execution by quoting market-consistent prices after receiving an enquiry from a client. As Baader & Heins Capital Management AG only acts as a broker and does not enter into the transaction itself, these prices are based on the price offers of the parent company, Baader Bank AG, which carries out and takes over execution of the final transactions with the clients of Baader & Heins Capital Management AG.

Baader & Heins Capital Management AG will also seek its clients' explicit permission to execute commercial transactions in fixed-income securities outside of organised markets and multilateral trading systems before each such transaction.

Ex-ante cost transparency

Our brokerage fee for selling securities usually amounts to between 0.01 and 0.50 per cent, depending on the respective security, and is reported clearly on the transaction confirmation. We do not charge any other service fees. We also do not offer any products that involve direct product costs in addition to service costs, such as certificates.

Sample charges for a loan against borrower's note

Service charges:

Purchase par value EUR 1 million

0.2% broker fee = EUR 2,000

Theoretical costs based on spread in market:

Current spread 98.00 to 101.00, fair value/spread midpoint 99.50

Difference between purchase price and spread midpoint: 1.5% = EUR 15,000

Without costs, the yield would be EUR 17,000 higher.

If the financial instrument is sold, the return for the corresponding year would decrease by another EUR 17,000, provided the spread in the market and broker fee remain unchanged.

Note: this example is calculated based on the supervisory requirements of ESMA. The actual entry costs cannot be used ex ante as Baader Bank may have already purchased the units being brokered at an earlier time and have them in its inventory or only cover short sales at a later time.

Sample invoice for corporate bonds

ISIN XS1724873275

Suedzucker Intl Finance B.V. EO-Notes 2017(17/25)

Current spread 98.98 to 99.16, fair value/spread midpoint 99.07

Difference between purchase price and spread midpoint: $0.09\% = \text{EUR } 450$

Without costs, the yield would be EUR 530 higher.

If the financial instrument is sold, the return for the corresponding year would decrease by another EUR 530, provided the spread in the market and broker fee remain unchanged.

Sample invoice for bank bonds

ISIN DE000NLB8G16
